TERMS OF REFERENCE AND RULES OF PROCEDURE

FOR

THE UN-HABITAT ADVISORY GROUP ON GENDER ISSUES (AGGI)

BACKGROUND:

The twenty first century is an urban century, in which half of the global population lives in cities. Urbanization is a powerful force that generates economic growth, social/political advances and technical and scientific progress. Each week three million people are added to cities in the developing world. One in every three of these people live in urban slums, a number expected to increase. Of these, as many as two-thirds are women and girls, often suffering the worst effects of slum life, such as poor access to clean water, inadequate sanitation, unemployment, insecurity of tenure and gender-based violence. At the same time, it is women and girls who make the difference in urbanization and help communities develop sustainably. Women make a difference in the lives of families and communities to cope with its negative effects, and implement strategies to enhance urbanization. The many roles that women play, at the family, household and community level, vitally contribute to sustainable urban development.

After the Nairobi Conference in 1985, UNCHS recognized the fact that women were missing from the human settlements agenda and ran a series of regional consultations to address this. Consequently, UNCHS established the Women and Human Settlements Office, to play a role in facilitating external relations of Habitat on women's issues in human settlements, and later created a Gender Mainstreaming Unit to ensure gender mainstreaming across UN-Habitat.

In 1995, during the United Nations (UN) 4th World’s Women Conference in Beijing, the then Executive Director of UNCHS, Wally N’Dow, announced the formation of the Huairou Commission¹ to monitor the Habitat II conference of 1996 from a women's perspective, and as a vehicle to strengthen the involvement of women in the human settlements arena, a role which it has continued to play. ²

In this regard, much work has been done by UN-Habitat and its partners (particularly the Huairou Commission) on women’s empowerment and gender equality, but more remains to be done.

An evaluation of the gender work of UN-Habitat conducted in 2011 revealed a need for a more focused look at gender mainstreaming and gender equality across all levels of UN-Habitat. Therefore, the Governing Council at its twenty-third session³ through resolution 23/1 (attached as Annex 1 for ease of reference), requested the strengthening of UN-Habitat’s gender focus through, among other processes, the formation of an Advisory Group on gender issues. This positive advancement will give stronger emphasis to the importance of gender equality and women's empowerment and will put women at the forefront as vital agents of change in human settlements work.

I. MISSION OF THE AGGI:

1. Advancing women’s empowerment and gender equality in sustainable urban development; through the provision of strategic guidance and advice, across policies, programme of work and budgeting at global, regional, national and local levels, taking note of gender evaluations, resolutions and the wider UN context for coherent work on women’s empowerment and gender equality.

2. Work of the AGGI will be guided by a common understanding of women's empowerment, gender equality, gender equity and gender mainstreaming, as outlined in Annex 2.

² Affirmed in Report to the General Assembly by the Secretary General on Habitat II, A/Conf.165/PC.3/3 November 15, 1995.

Resolution 23/1: Gender equality and empowerment of women in sustainable urban development

The Governing Council,

Recalling also Economic and Social Council resolution 2008/34, by which the Economic and Social Council encouraged all United Nations entities to allocate adequate resources for gender mainstreaming, including for mandatory training on gender mainstreaming, especially gender analysis, for all staff,

Recognizing that persistent gender inequality, women’s lack of empowerment and inequitable access to land, secure tenure, housing, infrastructure and basic services, in addition to their lack of participation in decision-making, create further challenges within the context of sustainable urban development,

Recognizing also the major development contributions made by grass-roots women worldwide, and that successful urbanization and development processes require grass-roots women’s involvement and leadership, which should be supported so as to have a positive impact on sustainable urban development,

Welcoming General Assembly resolution 64/289 of 2 July 2010 establishing the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women, which aims to lead to more effective coordination, coherence and gender mainstreaming across the United Nations system,

Taking note of the challenges and progress made in the implementation of the gender equality action plan 2008–2013 described in the report of the Executive Director,5

1. Requests the Executive Director to strengthen the Gender Mainstreaming Unit and with the Unit, to manage a unified system of gender focal points and a gender task force effective throughout the United Nations Human Settlements Programme;

5HSP/GC/23/5/Add.7.
2. Encourages the Executive Director to continue strengthening staff capacity and competency in gender mainstreaming, including in the regional offices;

3. Encourages the United Nations Human Settlements Programme to incorporate fully a gender perspective into all its work;

4. Requests the Executive Director to encourage the establishment of a consultative mechanism with the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women, the gender units of the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Environment Programme and the United Nations International Strategy for Disaster Reduction, and other relevant agencies with a focus on human settlements, to promote coherence, coordination and alignment within the United Nations system, and, in particular, to involve grass-roots women and community-based organizations, to inform these consultations;

5. Also requests the Executive Director to set up an advisory group on gender issues consisting of representatives of women’s organizations (both grass-roots and professional organizations), academic institutions, the private sector, local authorities, and policymakers and decision makers in Governments, taking into account equal regional representation, to advise the Executive Director on all issues related to gender mainstreaming in the work of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme and to provide oversight regarding the implementation of the gender equality action plan within the existing programme of work and budget;

6. Requests the Executive Director to submit a report on the implementation of the present resolution to the Governing Council at its twenty-fourth and future sessions.
ANNEX 2: Definitions of Terms

Gender refers to the social attributes and opportunities association with being male and female and the relationships between women and men and girls and boys, as well as the relationships between women and those between men. These attributes, opportunities and relationships are socially constructed and are learned through socialization processes. They are context/time-specific and changeable. Gender determines what is expected, allowed and valued in a woman or a man in a given context. In most societies there are differences and inequalities between women and men in responsibilities, assigned, activities undertaken, access to and control over resources as well as decision making opportunities. Gender is part of the broader socio-cultural context. Other important criteria for socio-cultural analysis include class, race, poverty level, ethnic group and age.

Gender equality refers to the equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities of women and men and girls and boys. Equality does not mean that women and men will become the same but that women’s and men’s rights, responsibilities and opportunities will not depend on whether they are born male or female. Gender equality implies that the interests, needs and priorities of both women and men are taken into consideration—recognizing the diversity of different groups of women and men. Gender equality is not a “women’s issues” but should concerns and fully engage men as well as women. Equality between women and men is seen both as a human rights issue and as a precondition for, and indicator of, sustainable people centered development.

Gender equity refers to the process of giving fair treatment to women and men. The goal of gender equity looks beyond equality of opportunity as it requires transformative change. Gender equity recognizes that different measures might be required for men and women where: they reflect different needs and priorities; or where their existing situation means that some groups of women or men need special or additional supportive measures to ensure that all are on a ‘level playing field’.

Women’s empowerment is related to gender equality but distinct from it. The core of empowerment lies in the ability of a woman to plan and control her own destiny. This implies that to be empowered women must not only have equal capabilities (such as education and health) and equal access to resources and opportunities (such as land and employment) they must also have the UN-Habitat to use those rights, capabilities, resources and opportunities to make strategic choices and decisions (such as are provided through leadership opportunities and participation in political institutions). And to exercise UN-Habitat, women must live without the fear of coercion and violence.

Gender Mainstreaming a gender perspective is the process of assessing the implication for women and men of any planned action, including legislation, policies or programmes in all areas and at all levels. It is a strategy for making women as well as men’s concerns and experiences an integral dimension of the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of policies and programmes in all political, economic and societal spheres so that women and men benefit equally and inequality is not perpetuated. The ultimate goal is to achieve gender equality.
