Report of the Executive Director

Summary

The present report identifies matters arising out of the resolutions adopted since the twentieth session of the Governing Council by major legislative organs of the United Nations and other intergovernmental bodies, which call for action by the Governing Council or are of direct relevance to its work. The report describes, where necessary, the activities and substantive contributions of the United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-Habitat) in response to those resolutions and, where necessary, seeks guidance from the Governing Council on further follow-up actions.

1. On 22 December 2005, at its sixtieth session, the General Assembly adopted resolution 60/203, on implementation of the outcome of the second United Nations Conference on Human Settlements and the strengthening of UN-Habitat, in which, among other things, it:

   (b) Encouraged Governments to consider an enhanced approach to achieving the Cities Without Slums Initiative, mentioned in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, by upgrading existing slums and creating policies and programmes, according to national circumstances, to forestall the growth of future slums and in this regard invited the international donor community and multilateral and regional development banks to support the efforts of developing countries through means including increased voluntary financial assistance;

   (c) Recognized that Governments have the primary responsibility for the sound and effective implementation of the Habitat Agenda, the Declaration on Cities and Other Human Settlements in the New Millennium and the Millennium Declaration and stressed the need for the international community to implement fully commitments to support Governments of developing countries and countries with economies in transition in their efforts, through the provision of the requisite resources, capacity-building, the transfer of technology and the creation of an international enabling environment;

   (d) Called for continued financial support to UN-Habitat through increased voluntary contributions to the United Nations Habitat and Human Settlements Foundation and invited Governments to provide multi-year funding to support programme implementation;

   (e) Also called for increased, non-earmarked contributions to the Foundation;

   (f) Requested the Secretary-General to keep the resource needs of UN-Habitat under review so as to enhance its effectiveness in supporting national policies, strategies and plans in attaining the poverty eradication, gender equality, water and sanitation and slum upgrading targets of the Millennium Declaration and the Johannesburg Plan of Implementation;

   (g) Emphasized the need for UN-Habitat to develop a results-based and less fragmented budget structure with a view to securing maximum efficiency, accountability and transparency in programme delivery, regardless of funding source;

   (h) Requested the Secretary-General to keep the resource needs of UN-Habitat and the United Nations Office at Nairobi under review so as to permit the delivery, in an effective manner, of necessary services to UN-Habitat and the other United Nations organs and organizations in Nairobi;

   (i) Invited the international donor community and financial institutions to contribute generously to the Water and Sanitation Trust Fund, the Slum Upgrading Facility and the technical cooperation trust funds to enable UN-Habitat to assist developing countries to mobilize public investment and private capital for slum upgrading, shelter and basic services;

   (j) Acknowledged contributions of the regional consultative initiatives, including conferences of ministers in the area of human settlements, for implementation of the Habitat Agenda and the attainment of the Millennium Development Goals, and invited the international community to support such efforts;

   (k) Stressed the importance of publishing the financial rules and regulations of the United Nations Habitat and Human Settlements Foundation in time for their adoption, no later than the end of 2005;

   (l) Requested UN-Habitat to intensify coordination within the framework of United Nations development assistance frameworks and the common country assessments and to continue to work with the World Bank, regional development banks, other development banks, regional organizations and other relevant partners to field-test innovative policies, practices and pilot projects in order to mobilize resources to increase the supply of affordable credit for slum upgrading and other pro-poor human settlements development in developing countries and countries with economies in transition;

(m) Invited all Governments to participate actively at the third session of the World Urban Forum and invited donor countries to support the participation of representatives from developing countries, in particular the least developed countries and countries with economies in transition, including women and youth, in the Forum;

(n) Encouraged Governments to establish local, national and regional urban observatories and to provide financial and substantive support to UN-Habitat for the further development of methodologies for data collection, analysis and dissemination;

(o) Recognized the important role and contribution of UN-Habitat in supporting the efforts of countries affected by natural disasters and complex emergencies to develop prevention, rehabilitation and reconstruction programmes for the transition from relief to development and in this regard requested UN-Habitat, within its mandate, to continue to work closely with other relevant agencies in the United Nations system and invites the Inter-Agency Standing Committee to consider including UN-Habitat in its membership;

(p) Requested UN-Habitat, through its involvement in the Executive Committee on Humanitarian Affairs and through contacts with relevant United Nations agencies and partners in the field, to promote the early involvement of human settlements experts in the assessment and development of prevention, rehabilitation and reconstruction programmes to support the efforts of developing countries affected by natural disasters and other complex humanitarian emergencies.

11. The actions taken by UN-Habitat towards the implementation of resolution 61/1 are detailed in the Executive Director’s progress report, contained in document HSP/GC/21/2.

VI. Thirteenth session of the Commission on Sustainable Development

12. At the conclusion of its thirteenth session, on 22 April 2005, the Commission on Sustainable Development adopted the report of that session (document E/2005/29). The report contains resolution 13/1, entitled “Policy options and practical measures to expedite implementation in water, sanitation and human settlements”, which consists of seven paragraphs under the following headings:

(a) Introduction (paragraphs 1 to 3);

(b) Water (paragraphs 3 (a) to 3 (h));

(c) Sanitation (paragraphs 3 (i) to 3 (o));

(d) Human settlements (paragraphs 3 (p) to 3 (s));

(e) Inter-linkages and cross-cutting issues (paragraphs 3 (t) to 3 (x));

(f) International institutional arrangements for monitoring and follow-up of decisions on water, sanitation and human settlements taken by the Commission at its thirteenth session (paragraphs 3 (y) to 7).

13. With its resolution 13/1, the Commission on Sustainable Development, among other things, emphasized that:

(a) Investments in water, sanitation and human settlements contribute to economic growth, sustainable development, better health and reduced poverty, and that the achievement of water, sanitation and human settlements goals is critical to the implementation of the three pillars of sustainable development and the achievement of all the internationally agreed development goals;
(b) The policy options and practical measures for expediting implementation relating to water, sanitation and human settlements should be nationally owned and integrated into poverty reduction strategies and/or national sustainable development strategies, whose implementation should begin by 2005, or national development plans;

(c) Governments have the primary role in promoting improved access to safe drinking water, basic sanitation, sustainable and secure tenure, and adequate shelter, through improved governance at all levels and appropriate enabling environments and regulatory frameworks, adopting a pro-poor approach and including the active involvement of all stakeholders;

(d) Efforts by Governments to achieve the agreed goals and targets on water, sanitation and human settlements should be supported by the international community through a conducive international policy environment, including good governance at the international level, a universal, rule-based, open, non-discriminatory and equitable multilateral trading system as well as meaningful trade liberalization, including through urgent completion of the Doha Round of multilateral trade negotiations with the realization of its development dimension, mobilization and transfer of financial resources, debt relief, including debt cancellation, where appropriate, public-public and public-private partnerships, technical cooperation and capacity-building, and technology transfer consistent with international obligations including agreements acceded to;

(e) Water, sanitation and human settlements are interlinked and complementary and should be addressed in an integrated manner, taking into account economic, social and environmental aspects, related sectoral policies and cross-cutting issues as identified at the eleventh session of the Commission, as well as national, subregional and regional specificities, circumstances and legal frameworks, and bearing in mind that no one size fits all;

(f) All donors should coordinate, in consultation with recipient countries, their country-level support for water, sanitation and human settlements, for example, by using a lead donor approach if mutually agreed, to increase the effectiveness of donor assistance;

(g) Education for sustainable development and access to a reliable system of economic, social and environmental information on water, sanitation and human settlements enable informed decision-making and accountability.

14. With its resolution 13/1, the Commission on Sustainable Development also decided to call on Governments and the United Nations system and to invite international financial institutions and other international organizations, working with major groups and other stakeholders to take various actions, including the following:

(a) Provide an enabling policy and regulatory environment and mobilize the requisite means of implementation, including through regional cooperation and international support, including increased financial resources to promote sustainable human settlements development in both urban and rural areas, in accordance with national priorities;

(b) Support integrated planning and management of human settlements, incorporating land use, housing, water supply and sanitation, waste management, energy, employment and income-generation, education and health-care services, transportation and other infrastructure, giving due consideration to urbanization trends, in particular, to the needs of the urban poor in implementing the Millennium Declaration, with a view to preventing new slum formation;

(c) Assist in providing access for the poor, in urban and rural areas, to decent and affordable housing and basic services, in accordance with the Habitat Agenda;

(d) Address water, sanitation and human settlements in an integrated manner, taking into account economic, social and environmental aspects, related sectoral policies and cross-cutting issues as identified at the eleventh session of the Commission, as well as national, subregional and regional specificities, circumstances and legal frameworks, with particular attention given to the requirements of women, youth and workers, through a range of measures and approaches;

(e) Devise water, sanitation and human settlements policies and actions taking account of the need to address the impacts of rapid urbanization, desertification, climate change and climate variability and natural disasters;

(f) Noting that water and sanitation targets are to halve the proportion of people who lack access to safe drinking water and sanitation by 2015, and that the target for slum-dwellers is to improve the lives of at least 100 million slum-dwellers by 2020, support countries, including through the United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-Habitat), in their ability to provide data and information on existing slums with a projection on new slum formation by 2020, and thereafter to adopt and implement plans to achieve these targets, linked to poverty reduction strategies, national sustainable development strategies or other relevant policy plans;

(g) Concerning the means of implementation, mobilize adequate resources to meet the water, sanitation and human settlements goals and targets, tapping both domestic and international sources through a range of financing approaches;

(h) Support, strengthen and implement voluntary monitoring, reporting and assessment of the thematic areas of water, sanitation and human settlements at the national and regional levels and through existing mechanisms at the global level to keep track of progress in achieving sustainable development, bearing in mind the specific needs of developing countries.

15. With its resolution 13/1, the Commission also:

(a) Requested UN-Habitat as the focal agency for human settlements, to facilitate, in close collaboration with relevant United Nations organizations and programmes as well as other partners, effective global monitoring of progress in the implementation of human settlements goals and targets, as well as measures agreed at the thirteenth session of the Commission concerning human settlements;

(b) Called upon Member States to strengthen the capacities of UN-Habitat to provide, within its mandate, increased assistance to developing countries, and countries with economies in transition, including through the current pilot phase of the Slum Upgrading Facility.

16. The actions taken by UN-Habitat to implement resolution 13/1 are detailed in the Executive Director’s progress report, contained in document HSP/GC/21/2.

VII. Fourteenth session of the Commission on Sustainable Development

17. At the conclusion of its fourteenth session, on 12 May 2006, the Commission on Sustainable Development adopted the report of that session (document E/2006/29(SUP)/E/CN.17/2006/15(SUPP)). The report contains the Chairman’s summary of the session, which comprises 284 paragraphs under the following main headings:

Part one

(a) Opening of the session: report on intercessional events (paragraphs 1 to 5),

(b) Overall review: general statements (paragraphs 6 to 19),

(c) Thematic discussions: energy for sustainable development, industrial development, air pollution/atmosphere and climate change (paragraphs 20 to 187),

(d) Regional discussions (paragraphs 188 to 215),

(e) Small island developing States day (paragraphs 216 to 229),

(f) Interactive discussions with major groups (paragraphs 230 to 239),

(g) Partnerships fair, learning centre and side events (paragraphs 240 to 249).

Part two

(a) High-level segment (paragraphs 250 to 283),

(b) Responding to challenges: the way forward (paragraph 284).

18. As noted in the report of the fourteenth session, members of the Commission expressed the following views during the thematic discussions on energy for sustainable development, industrial development, air pollution/atmosphere and climate change:

(a) Energy efficiency provides a win-win opportunity with many benefits including greater industrial competitiveness, better energy security and substantial reductions in carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gas emissions in a cost-effective way. There is considerable scope for improving energy efficiency in households, the transport sector and industry, including the energy industry, by changing consumption and production patterns, behaviours and lifestyles;
(b) The rapid growth of private vehicle ownership in some developing countries, driven by population growth, economic growth and urbanization, is leading to increased urban air pollution. In others, a fleet of old vehicles produces high levels of pollution. The higher cost of new vehicles with better fuel efficiency and pollution controls can be a constraint to more rapid turnover of the vehicle fleet;

(c) The social benefits of improved energy efficiency, including job creation and reduced public health costs, have also been recognized. Among measures found to be effective in promoting energy efficiency are mandatory performance standards, appliance and building standards and labels, financial incentives for technology improvements and the elimination of perverse incentives whereby energy utilities maximize profits by maximizing electricity sales;

(d) Better coordination among national energy, transport and land-use ministries and between Governments and the private sector is needed. Better land-use planning, such as locating residential, commercial and employment centres with a view to energy savings, needs attention;

(e) Innovative approaches to urban planning, including land-use planning, public transportation systems and traffic management, are needed to manage urban air quality, with the involvement of all stakeholders in decision-making and implementation.

19. The actions taken by UN-Habitat to implement the decisions of the Commission on Sustainable Development at its thirteenth session, as set out in the report of that session (E/2006/29(SUP)/E/CN.17/2006/15(SUPP), are detailed in document HSP/GC/21/2/Add 6, entitled “Energy consumption in human settlements”.
